Work Request 25-000008 – Review the brick definitions to ensure that the "Include" and "Exclude" definitions are placed in their correct fields.

- This work request has been developed to place definition includes and excludes in their correct fields. Since May 2021, GPC has been published on a new platform. Previously, definitions for "includes" and "excludes" were combined in a single field. However, in the new platform, these must be separated into two distinct fields: one for "includes" and another for "excludes." During the migration from the old tool to the new one, some brick definitions were not correctly mapped. As a result, some "excludes" are incorrectly placed in the "Brick definition (Include)" field, and many "includes" are found in the "Brick definition (Exclude)" field.

Work Request 25-000057 – Add a new GPC brick for "Drinking Enhancers – Not Ready to Drink" and move brick "Drinking Bottles" to another class.

- This work request has been developed to address the current classification of drinking bottles. Currently, all drinking bottles are categorised under the Sports Equipment Accessories class within the Sports Equipment segment and family. As reusable drinking bottles are no longer solely associated with sports and are widely used in daily life, this brick has been moved to the Kitchenware and Tableware segment, specifically under the Water/Beverage Equipment class. Additionally, a new brick has been created for Drinking Enhancers – Not Ready to Drink within the Food/Beverage segment. This new brick is intended to classify products, such as aroma pods, which do not contain flavouring, ingredients, or sugar that dissolve in water. This categorisation ensures that products which enhance the drinking experience but are not intended for direct consumption or flavouring align with the correct classification, distinct from ready-to-drink beverages.

- 1 brick moved and updated, 1 brick created.
